

Napkin Crawling Expedition

A report by Natasha Pyoterisk, First of her Name and Trainee of Leona

We went through wicked corpse to the napkin gang base. We encountered bodies hanging from trees on our travels. A primal fear envelops us, and Achillea runs away.

Kurze goes after her, and we split up. During this, we get attacked by a bunch of fiends. Me and Wynnstan get attacked by an insectoid with four arms and a trident. This one seemingly is resistant against elemental attacks like fire, lightning and cold. He also looks like he is immune to poison and acid, since he had something akin to acid dripping from his mouth. He does get hurt by normal weapons, seemingly having no special resistance against those.

Achillea and Kurze got attacked by flying fiends, and they quickly dispatched them. Me and Wynnstan weren't as lucky, the insectoid fiend envelopping us in a poison cloud. We managed to dispatch that one and encountered the Purple Napkin Gang's, hereby called PNG, Hideout.

The PNG's hideout was abandoned, with seemingly no human traces left. Achillea investigated the big building, and encountered an unconscious man with a napkin and a glyph of warding. I shot the guy in the chest with my longbow, triggering the glyph from a safe distance. We then go and head down the stairs.

During the 7 hours of walking, me and Wynnstan recite poetry in Dwarvish. After those 7 hours of walking, we see a purple light and we enter The Underdark, located right beneath the PNG's hideout. We see cows with lights around them moving boxes, 4 PNG members and two Monstrosities with bird heads and hooks instead of wings.

We enter combat, there is one leader type PNG member and a duelist with two scimitars (important for later). During combat, the duelist gains a new face (I will save you guys the details). We defeat them and look around the boxes. We encounter bunnies, and we theorise they use animal carcasses for the duelists to form the bodies in some way.

After looking around some more, we encountered a plateau in a big room. In this room, there stand 5 humanoid statues on a platform. Every statue has a different colored napkin. You have the PNG, a green checkered napkin, an RNG (Red-colored napkin gang), a white napkin gang and a black napkin gang. There is a small gem in the statue, and space which makes it seem that it's able to get moved.

There is also a cage hanging, with a manticore inside. this one violently trashing against the cage, and seemingly not being able to talk which normally they should. There are boats in canals, and big fungi tunnels.

After a bit of exploring, we have a few of those duelists and another special guy it seems. We did not have time to figure out what they exactly were. The duelists gain 15 reach and become monstrous when bloodied, seemingly growing bigger. We flee this space with our loot.

Please, if you are a powerful strider, come with us here. We can utilize your skills for exploring and mapping. May the serpentine gods have mercy